

Step 3: Find resources

Resources are all over the place, but what do you do? Which one do you choose and what will work for you and your family. Remember, homeschooling is a family affair.

If it is at all possible, try to attend a virtual or a social distanced and safe homeschool conference, social outlet homeschool seminars/workshops. Your local (or state) homeschool groups (<https://www.nbhe.net/resources/state-laws>) should have information. These are great opportunities for you to get a hands-on look at curriculum, homeschool authors, and meet fellow homeschoolers. Most vendors offer their products at discounts during these sessions. As you begin to look at curriculum, you'll quickly discover there are numerous teaching methods and different learning styles. Don't be afraid to just "jump in." If you don't already know what works for your family, I promise you'll figure it out. National Black Home Educators' volunteer consultants are here to assist you as well. Email burges1@outlook.com to get connected. Homeschooling is as much a journey and adventure as it is an education and it should cost a lot. Most local libraries have a large selection of how-to books about homeschooling -

www.khanacademy.org
www.africlassical.com

www.education.com
www.abcteach.com